FORD COMPANY MAPS FIGHT ON NLRB DECISION

'Unconcealed Hostility' Toward Union Hit By Labor Board In Wagner Act Case.

ORDERS 29 BACK ON JOB

Plant Brands Ruling 'Unjust,' Says It'll Carry Fight to U. S. Court of Appeals.

DETROIT — (AP) — The Ford Motor company, described by the national labor relations board as a violator of the Wagner act which displayed "unconcealed hostility" toward unionization, prepared today to fight the board's decision in the United States court of appeals.

The company said immediately after the board's findings were announced late yesterday that the decision was "wrong and unjust" and "based on prejudice."

Plans Long Fight.

Announcement of the appeal was in line with the general understanding in Detroit that the Ford company eventually would go to the supreme court of the United States, if necessary, to defend its views on management and labor.

Main points in the board's findings, based on a lengthy hearing held in Detroit last summer:

The company must reinstate 29 employes the NLRB said were fired for union activity:

It must cease discouraging membership in the United Automobile workers of America or any other "bona fide" union;

It must stop fostering "dummy" labor organizations such as the Ford Brotherhood of America, and Must Not Interfere.

It must desist in its efforts to interfere with "the rights of self-organization" of labor through threatening, assaulting, coercing, beating and otherwise intimidating by force, propaganda, criticism or disparagement, this part of the order to include a ban on the use of vigilante or other similar groups such as the Ford Service department insofar as the latter is employed in restraining union activity.

The employes ordered reinstated are to be paid for loss of time and restored to the same positions from which they were discharged, without loss of seniority or other rights.

Four Youths Who Admit 26 Thefts Put On Probation

Four Mansfield and Ontario youths who admitted 26 burglaries in Mansfield in the past year when brought before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court yesterday were under parole to their parents and a school teacher today, with instructions to report weekly to probation officers.

Three of the youths, who are residents of Mansfield, will report each Saturday to Ralph Carroll, county probation officer, Judge Anderson said. The other boy, a pupil in the Springfield township schools, was paroled to Orville Kibler, athletic director of the schools. The probations are for indefinite periods.

"All of the boys had good home background, and no police records,' Judge Anderson said, "so I decided it was the better course to place them under the care of their parents and the teacher.'

The youths, all of whom are under 17 years old, were arrested Wednesday at their homes by city detectives. Four hours of questioning revealed that the boys had burglarized at least 16 Mansfield business establishments and had stolen five automobiles.

Their largest "haul" was $42, most of which represented cigarets, candy, and other small articles, detectives said.

450 GET $10,000 BONUS

PORTSMOUTH—(AP) — General Manager N. B. Griffin of the Selby Shoe company announced today distribution of $10,000 in bonus checks to 450 employes. He also disclosed signing of a new wage and hour contract with employes of a branch plant in Ironton.

In keeping with its usual custom, The News-Journal will print no editions Saturday, Christmas day.

Yuletide Spirit Reigns--Needy Share In Joy

City Will Say "Merry Christmas" With All Fervor of Other Years; Muster-Cheers Distribute Baskets To 700 Families; Delano Lodge Aids 350 Others.

Despite the ups and downs of a whirligig age, with its joys and sorrows, Mansfield was ready today to say "Merry Christmas" with all the fervor of other years.

Days of excitement, activity and planning will have their climax when the city joins with the rest of the Christian world tomorrow to pay homage to the Christ child on the greatest of all holidays.

In thousands of homes boys and girls are counting the hour until Old Santa comes down the chimney to fill the waiting stockings.

Makes Day Happier.

The city's Christmas will be made happier by the distribution of thousands of dollars in bonus checks, in the past week, while more than 1,000 unfortunate families today received baskets of food for holiday dinners that otherwise might have lacked the "extra trimmings."

Agencies which helped to bring Yuletide joy to these homes included the Three Muster-Cheers, the Delano lodge and the Salvation Army.

Business activities in the city will be at a standstill. Stores, city and county offices and the postoffice will be closed. Mail carriers and other postal employes, who for the past two weeks have labored under the burden of record holiday business, will enjoy a rest. Only letters and packages bearing special delivery stamps will be delivered during the day, Postmaster Herman E. Homberger said.

Railroads and bus lines reported heavy traffic today as homeward-bound passengers thronged stations. Railroads were operating extra sections on virtually all of the limited trains, traffic officials said. The railroads and bus companies expected the holiday travel to reach a peak this afternoon.

The city's introduction to the 1937 Christmas will be tuneful and reverent, with a public carol singing scheduled for 8:30 p. m. today in Central park and a num-

A good part of Mansfield's Christmas spirit was centered in the vicinity of Second and South Main streets this morning as hundreds of the city's needy filed through the Salvation Army headquarters to reap the benefits of the Community Christmas fund.

A few more than 200 of the 700 families on the list had received their Christmas dinner supplies at 10:30 a. m., Commander L. A. Cook of the American Legion said. The distribution, which started at 9 a. m., was slowed down by the ice coating on the streets, but the Boy Scouts and a number of the city's business firms came to the rescue of the Three Muster-Cheers with trucks and automobiles for making deliveries.

Lodge Gives Out Baskets.

At the Delano lodge hall on North Bowman street, 350 more families were receiving Yuletide baskets. Baskets went to families where the father is either unemployed or working only part time at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

Nearly 20 tons of good, substantial food—enough for several meals for the average-sized family—were distributed to the city's unfortunates by the Three Muster-Cheers and the Delano lodge.

Each of the baskets, which averaged 35 pounds, contained canned fruits and vegetables, portions of pancake flour and coffee, three pounds of boneless ham, potatoes, cabbage, beans, syrup, oranges, apples, cookies, crackers and bread.

From the Salvation Army home, about 150 baskets were delivered to families with no means of transportation and to homes where there is illness. Boy Scout and Legionnaire volunteers made the deliveries in trucks and automobiles donated by the Mansfield Tent and Awning company, West's Dry Cleaning company, the A. F. Remy company, Jacob Groves and H. J. Sir Louis. Other cars were expected to be brought into service later in the day.

Although the line of happy applicants for baskets reached from Main street through the Salvation Army home and back onto the street again, the distribution was expected to be completed by 1 p. m.

NEAR TRAGEDY

Pupils Overcome by Gas In Church Near Willard.

WILLARD—Twenty Greenfield township children today were recovering from the effects of gas fumes, suffered yesterday as they practiced a Christmas program.

Ninety children, students at the Central school, at Steuben, were assembled in the Church of the Master, near the school when those on the stage began to faint, one by one. There were twenty on the stage, all affected by the gas. They were taken to the home of L. C. Gamble nearby and treated by a Willard physician, Dr. Wade McCreight. All recovered.

The fumes were blamed on coke fires built in open containers in the basement to dry fresh concrete. The church, one of the oldest in the vicinity, is undergoing alterations.

The program, scheduled for last night, was called off.

Tiny Christmas Candle Turns On Huge Westinghouse Sign

(Picture on Page 11.)

A tiny Christmas candle, gleaming in solitary splendor on the desk of A. E. Allen, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, last night turned on the new Westinghouse sign, atop the office building, for the first time.

Miss Carolyn Allen, daughter of the company executive, sat at her fathers desk, and by simply holding a photo-electric cell close to the candle, turned on the huge sign, 200 feet long, 27 feet high and containing 2,057 lamps, in addition to a large amount of neon lighting.

As the light from the candle excited the photo-electric cell and closed the relay that turned on the sign, the entire area to the east of the building was flooded with light. On the crest of Ashland hill, scores of persons saw the light flash on and read the words "Every House Needs Westinghouse.' On the left of the sign, is the large "Circle W."

Other than for the scientific phenomenon of one of the earliest forms of lighting being used to start one of the most modern forms, the lighting of the sign was without much pomp or ceremony.

In Allen's office were: Mr. and Mrs. Allen, R. E. Imhoff, C. L. Van Derau, J. G. Baird, all Westinghouse executives: Judge C. H. Huston, president, and Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and newspapermen.

The sign will be lighted at dusk each evening and will remain lighted until midnight.

CITY'S WATER PROGRAM GETS OK FROM STATE

Health Department Approves Plans to Improve Supply and Distribution.

FINANCES STILL PROBLEM

Long Range Undertaking Calls For Spending $679,000 on City System.

The city of Mansfield got a Christmas present today—the approval of the state board of health on its water development program.

The approval reached Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe today, in a letter from Dr. Walter H. Hartung, head of the state health department.

Dr. Hartung's letter specified only that the city submit detailed plans for approval before any actual construction work is started. Wolfe said that was a routine requirement of the health department.

The water program, as set up by George B. Gascoigne and Associates, Cleveland engineers, calls for an expenditure of $679,000 over a period of years, and would revamp practically the entire water distribution system, as well as making major changes in the sources of supply.

First Part Planned.

The city has been considering undertaking only a part of that program immediately, and plans to spend about $225,000 on improvements contemplated at present. This would include a tank tower and booster pump in the Woodland district, to increase water pressure there, construction of a new high-capacity main from the Maxwell reservoir to business section, and installation of new laterals over the city. Included in this plan is the elimination of the Hedges street station, for reasons of economy.

The long-range plan calls for the elimination of the present North Main street reservoir and pumping station, construction of a new reservoir in the northern section of the city, centralization of the source of supply in the Maxwell field, and general improvement of the distribution system.

Financing Still Problem.

The city still has the problem of financing to solve, however, be-

BODY FOUND

'Flying Santa' Who Plunged to Death Located by Pilot.

BOSTON—(AP)—Captain Richard E. Cobb, from whose plane Corporal Harold Kraner, 35, of Winthrop, fell in a Santa Claus suit to his death, today found Kraner's body just off the Boston airport. It was entangled in the shrouds of a sodden parachute.

The aviator, flying low over the harbor on the second day's search for Kraner, saw the body in about 15 feet of water. The parachute cords were tightly wrapped around Kraner's neck, indicating he might have strangled.

Horrified children saw Kraner disappear into the dusky waters of the harbor Wednesday as he floated downward to open a Christmas party.

160 Workers Get $13,000 In Time for Yule Needs.

Following the annual custom of receiving their pay before Christmas, nearly 160 city employes today received their checks for the payroll period ending Dec. 31.

But pay day today had a double significance. Not only was it the last pay of the year, but also the last for numerous employes who will relinquish their jobs on Jan. 1, to the new administration.

City Auditor Paul Kelley, who distributed the checks that totaled approximately $13,000, said it was the annual custom of city officials to move up the last pay day of the year so the employes might have their checks for Christmas.

GUNMEN STEAL CHRISTMAS FUND

ICE GONE BUT SNOW'S 'OUT'

Rain Washes Glaze Off Streets But Rising Mercury Kills "White Yule" Hopes.

An icy peril to Yuletide traffic and the state's chances for a white Christmas faded today as the mercury climbed above freezing and rain washed away the slippery covering on roads and streets.

A state-wide forecast carried the promise of cloudy and colder weather for Christmas day, with a possibility of snow only in the northwest corner of Ohio. Should the mercury start falling late today, there may be snow flurries tomorrow morning, however, the forecast said.

Mansfield was virtually isolated by highway for three hours this morning when a light rain froze on the streets and roads, resulting in the worst traffic conditions of the winter.

Scores of automobiles and trucks were stranded on even the

NOTE SAYS ALL PUNISHED FOR SINKING PANAY

'Definite Steps' Taken To Avoid Recurrence, Answer to Protest Declares.

ACCEPTS FULL BLAME

Bombing 'Entirely Due to a Mistake' Message Sent to Ambassador Asserts.

TOKYO—The Japanese government today acknowledged full responsibility for sinking of the United States gunboat Panay by Japanese planes, said that the flying squadron, commander and "all others responsible" had been punished, and assured the American government "definite and specific steps" had been taken to prevent a recurrence.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota personally handed the note to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew at 7 p. m. tonight (5 a. m. EST) after approval by the cabinet and sanction by Emperor Hirohito.

The text was not published in Japan.

Answers Protest.

It answered American representations after bombing of the Panay and three Standard Oil vessels in the Yangtze above Nanking on Dec. 12.

These representations included a memorandum by President Roosevelt asking that the emperor be informed that the American president viewed the incident with concern.

Hirota did not make clear how the responsible bombers were punished except that they were dealt with "according to law."

The note, while holding that the sinking of the Panay was "entirely due to a mistake," nevertheless said:

"The Japanese navy has issued without delay strict orders 'to exercise the greatest caution in every area where warships and other vessels of America or any other third power are present, in order to avoid a recurrence of a similar mistake, even at the sacrifice of strategic advantage in attacking Chinese troops.'

"Furthermore, rigid orders have been issued to the military, naval and foreign office authorities to pay, in the light of the present untoward incident, greater attention than hitherto to observance of instructions that have been re-

WANTS CHECKER

Wheeler Proposes Watchdog on U. S. Appropriations.

WASHINGTON—(AP) — Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) proposed today that congress set up a permanent, independent agency as a watchdog over government appropriations

"Many people blame congress for extravagance, and it undoubtedly is extravagant," Wheeler said, "but most of the appropriations which have unbalanced the budget have been asked by the executive departments.

"Now, congress has practically no way of checking up on the figures which are presented by the various departments.

"Nor do we have any chance to get the figures on how much money, if any, has been wasted in such agencies as rural resettlement and the agricultural adjustment administration."

Yule Spirit Spreads to County Bastiles; 4 In City Jail Freed

The spirit of Christmas will extend into two jails in Mansfield and the Ohio State Reformatory when the annual holiday is observed tomorrow.

Following the annual custom, four prisoners serving time for intoxication at city jail were released by Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

At the reformatory, a complete holiday program has been planned for the 2,600 inmates, Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said.

Following taps at 8:45 p. m. today, the inmates will join in a one hour program of Christmas carols. Tomorrow they will receive a pound box of chocolates. After chapel services, the day's program will be climaxed with a Christmas dinner of roast pork and dressing with mashed potatoes, lima beans, pickles, bread, butter and coffee, topped off with fruit jello and mince pie and apples.

Dinner for the 29 prisoners at the county jail will be prepared under the direction of Mrs. E. P. Long, wife of the sheriff. There will be roast chicken with mashed potatoes, gravy, noodles and cole slaw. Dessert will include pumpkin pie and coffee.

At both institutions inmates will have to be satisfied to wait for any Christmas gifts until their release. Supt. Glattke said that inmates of the reformatory were not allowed any gifts with the exception of money.

CHAPTER XV

Marion laughed her clear wholesome laugh. "We're boring her to death with all this talk about how many horses we're going to buy for the Maryland place." She looked at Karen and smiled. "I hope something comes of this for you. Heaven knows you deserve a break, Tommy and I would like for every one to be as happy as we are. We don't want to corner the market on happiness and good breaks. I'm not going with you to Tappen's I trust you with my brand-new husband."

They left Marion and took a taxi to Bernie Tappen's office. Karen thought, "I can't fail; I'll never get an opportunity like this again. I can't fail the few people who believe in me—Roxanne and Marion and Tommy and.... Aunt Hetty."

"Did you see Philip before he went to England?" Tommy asked.

So he was gone! She wished that Tommy would not turn her thoughts to Philip now.

"No. I didn't see him. I didn't even know for sure he had gone."

"Don't be afraid of Tappen. He's all right."

"But this means so much to me, Tommy. I can't thank you enough."

Don't thank me, he thought. Thank Philip. But until the last Philip had insisted that Karen was not to know he had arranged for Tappen to see her.

"Well, here we are," he said as the taxi stopped. He grinned at her. "Little Miss Unknown walks in and a potential Broadway star walks out. Let us pray..."

An hour later Karen came out of Bernie Tappen's office with a script of the play, "Until Tomorrow" under her arm. She touched Tommy's arm.

"Why, you're crying!" he said. He took his handkerchief from his coat pocket and gave it to her.

"I can't help crying, Tommy."

"You were great. It's not a very important part but you can put a lot in it. You can't expect to be a leading lady right off, you know."

It had been surprisingly simple. Obviously Philip had talked long and convincingly of Karen's potentialities. And although Tappen had been impressed by her appearance and her voice, the part was hers before he saw her. Philip was a power in the theatrical world.

"I'll drop you at the apartment," Tommy said.

"No. I'd like to walk." She wanted to walk in the sunlight with a play under her arm. No one, not even Roxanne, could possibly share her feelings. The street, thickly people, was suddenly beautiful. The sky had never been quite so blue above the tall buildings.

With shining eyes she looked at Tommy who put his hand on her shoulder. His smile was twisted. "Don't thank me again, Karen. All the thanks I want is for you to make good. And you will. I've got to be running along now to meet Marion."

Karen Mallare did queer things to your heart, he thought, as he left her and hailed the first taxi. And Philip had been indignant when he had asked him if he loved her. Tommy thought, "What's wrong with the guy? Why go to England when a girl with everything a man could wish for is right here and crazy about him?"

In a hotel lobby Marion waited for him anxiously.

"Did she...." she asked.

"She did," Tommy said. "But she thanked me and she thinks she sold herself. I don't like this business. If she finds out that Philip gave her the big build-up..."

Feeling light-headed with happiness, Karen felt she could walk forever. Her hopes took wings Looking ahead, she was not seeing the multitude coming and going nor the chain of cars. She was seeing a stage, seeing herself on that stage before the footlights, and seeing Philip in a box looking at her. There would be a knock and Philip would come in...A lovely dream — that. But a dream that would never come true.

Roxanne was waiting. "You don't have to tell me!" she cried. "You got it! Didn't I tell you you would? Now the first thing you've got to do is tell Sam Kasten you've crooned your last number in his hotel roof show. You'll miss the money but you can't do two jobs at once." Karen still looked a little dazed, she thought.

"It's only a small part but if I do it well..."

The next afternoon before rehearsal she went directly to Sam Kasten.

His small eyes crinkled. He liked her Every one in the show liked her.

"I'll bet you're going to ask me for more money," he said.

"No. I came to tell you I'm leaving."

He frowned. "Leaving?"

"I have a part in a play and..."

He took the strong cigar from his mouth. "You leave a good steady job for a part in a play? How long will it run? It might close in a week."

She had not considered that before. "I'll have to take that chance. But before I go, I want to thank you for giving me a chance here."

Nodding and smiling, he said, "You'll come back. They always come back."

"But never to sing again," Karen said.

Rehearsals for "Until Tomorrow" began with the usual difficulties. For Karen there were long impatient hours of waiting before she spoke her small part. Little notice was taken of her by other members of the cast. The star, Lucia Chancery, stared coldly through her. Only Bernie Tappen noticed every gesture and every inflection of her voice. But his criticisms were often stingingly terse.

Despite the snubs and criticisms, Karen was happy, she was living! One night she told Roxanne, "Everybody looks at me as if they wonder what I'm doing there." Completely absorbed, she was entirely unconscious that to many members of the cast she was "The pretty dark-haired girl, you know, the one who doesn't miss a trick."

Summer was over The shops displayed the newest in furs. Theaters were opening and night clubs lavishly advertised their attractions. Ships were filled to capacity bringing people home. But no ship as yet brought Philip and Lilyan. Karen heard that Brenda Bond was rehearsing in Philip's new play.

Slowly, painstakingly as the difficulties were minimized., "Until Tomorrow" took shape. But often Karen felt that Tappen was not pleased with the play about which he had been so enthusiastic at first. He appeared worried.

At breakfast she told Roxanne, "The play is good but Lucia Chancery isn't."

"You'd better not tell that to anybody else," Roxanne said. "They'd ask you how you know so much about it when this is your first professional part."

"But she doesn't have her mind on it. She seems upset about something. Her private life, I suppose."

"She shouldn't bring it to work with her."

Dreamily Karen stared out the window. "To be in Philip's play with Brenda Bond! Just to work with her! She wouldn't look through you and she wouldn't bring her private life to work. I wonder what his new play is about." She looked down at the cup of black coffee before her. "I wonder where Philip is this morning. I wonder if he's given me a thought since he left. I've kept him close to me during these weeks of rehearsal. Sometimes it's almost as if he were standing next to me telling me what to do. I wonder if I'll ever meet Lilyan. She must be wonderful if he loves her."

"Until Tomorrow" opened in Washington.

Roxanne saw Karen, excited and tired from the last minute rehearsals, to the train. The morning after the opening she hurried out to buy a Washington paper and could not wait to return to the apartment to read what the Washington critics had written. Standing in the cener of he sidewalk, she turned the pages quickly and read quickly.

The critics were doubtful of the play's worth. Lucia Chancery's performance received faint praise from one critic, another flayed her. It was only one sentence but Roxanne read it many times: "A new and exciting personality is Karen Mallare"

The night the play opened in New York Roxanne arrived late and slid in the balcony seat

Lucia Chancery and the leading man were on the stage now. Roxanne knew the play almost line for line. Knowing that Karen was soon to appear, she clasped her hands tightly and sat stiffly. Her heart beats were loud and fast.

COLLECTOR PROUDEST OF BAT FOUND ENCRUSTED IN STONE

NIANTIC, Conn.—(U.P.)—Charles H. Williams, who makes popcorn balls in the summer and collects petrified wood and stones of volcanic origin in the winter, will be off soon for the west coast to roam the California desert, mush around Death Valley and scale mountains in search of material for his vast collection which exceeds 5,000 pieces.

He's not a geologist—just collects wood and stones as a hobby. His dog, Rex, is almost as good as his master in seeking out desirable material. It was all started by Mrs. Williams some years ago, but she recently died, leaving Williams and his dog to carry on, as he puts it.

Sometimes he brings back things more tangible than stones and wooden pieces. He has a bat, petrified in a piece of stone and an old alkali encrusted water canteen he picked up in Death Valley

"What a story that could tell," he said. The bat in the rock was discovered in the Ozark mountains in Missouri. Williams has teeth from a skull three feet in diameter found in the California desert. He has the petrified fossil of a fish found on top of a mountain near Palo Verde, Cal.

Williams says he once found a whole mountain of petrified wood, which was gradually turning to asbestos; petrified clam shells in rocks from Oregon, stones of great brilliance from the Grand Canyon, zinc and lead formations from Missouri mines, and many other types.

His dog, Rex, a Siberian samoyede, is as interesting to a visitor as the Williams' unusual collection. Williams came out of the house, and not realizing Rex was near, said: "I've forgotten my hat again." The dog ran into the house and returned with the hat.

Jersey Dedicates New Lincoln Tunnel

Amid impressive ceremonies at both ends, the newly-constructed Lincoln tunnel, connecting Weehawken, N. J., and New York City, was opened. The above photo was taken on the Weehawken side with troops passing in review as army trucks emerge from the tunnel. The governors of both New York and New Jersey spoke at the dedication.

VILLAGE KEEPS RELICS OF JOAN

Domremy In France Plans to Celebrate Anniversary of Warrior-Saint's Birth.

DOMREMY, France—(U.P.)—The 266 inhabitants of Domremy will celebrate the 526th anniversary on Jan. 6 of the birth of Joan of Arc, the warrior-saint who gave this inconspicuous Lorraine village an important place in history books of Europe and America.

Each year the village observes the birthday of the girl who was born in 1412, became the victorious leader of the French army at 17, and was burned at the stake in Rouen when she was only 19.

Visitors to Domremy for the anniversary will see there the "eternal candle" placed in the basilica of St. Joan a year ago to symbolize her virtues.

The candle burns before the main altar of the church and in the words of Bishop Marmottin:

"As long as our globe exists, this candle will burn for France and in tribute to St. Joan; it will evoke her simple faith, her ardent patriotism, her unfailing courage—qualities which are needed in 1937 as in 1421 when she went heroically to a martyr's death."

The village has not changed much since the time when the young girl left it to expel the English from France. The Chenu Woods where she heard the voices of St. Michael, St Marguerite and St. Catherine are virtually unchanged, the church where she worshipped remains except for restorations and repairs through the centuries, and even the font where she was baptized is the same today.

THEATER

BUSTER KEATON, the frozen-faced comic of a few years back is turning director . . . His first picture will have Francis X. Bushman, one of the screen's first romantic idols, in the cast . . . Mark Hellinger's story, "Six Girls and Death," went into production recently . . . The film will be called "Six Girls" . . . The word death is deleted by the movie makers because no film containing the word "death" in the title has ever been a box office hit . . . La Hepburn will now join the other stars who have gone in for fisticuffs, in recent pictures . . . In "Bringing Up Baby," she is required to land a left hook on Walter Catlett's jaw.

"I'll Take Romance."

"I'll Take Romance," in which Grace Moore makes her return to the screen, this time opposite Melvyn Douglas will open as a midnight show at the Madison theater Saturday at 11:30. The film pictures Miss Moore as a tempermental opera star who refuses to comply with a contract calling for her services at an opera house in Buenos Aires. Douglas, representing the opera company, is commissioned to persuade her to honor the deal—by fair means or foul. Douglas falls in love with the star and makes her fall in love with him, kidnaps her on the eve of her departure for Europe and winds up in an exciting last-minute shuffle to straighten out all the intrigue to which he has resorted.

Nelson Eddy at Ohio.

Nelson Eddy, the star of "Naughty Marietta," and "Rose Marie," is co-starred with Eleanor Powell in "Rosalie," opening at the Ohio theater today. Eddy portrays the part of a West Pointer, a star football player, who meets and falls in love with a princess who is visiting America under an assumed name. She returns to her home in Europe and invites Eddy to visit her there during a festival. He flies across the ocean and on the day he arrives discovers that she is to marry a prince during the celebration. He leaves and returns to the United States. Shortly afterwards Miss Powell and her father flee to America when a revolt breaks out. The balance of the film follows the romantic adventures as they attempt to iron out their difficulties.

"Men In White."

Clark Gable and Myrna Loy come to the Majestic theater Sunday in "Men In White." The picture revolves around Gable, a promising young interne, who has to decide whether to marry the girl he loves—(she doesn't like the way he fails to keep dates because he must do his work at a hospital)—or go to Europe to study. He turns to a girl nurse when his fiancé quarrels with him and then the three fight to iron out their trouble in an unusual way. Jean Hersholt and Elizabeth Allen support the stars. The second feature will be "Under Suspicion," with Jack Holt, Granville Bates and Morgan Wallace.

"100 Men and a Girl."

Deanna Durbin, who rose to screen fame in "Three Smart Girls," heads the cast of "100 Men and a Girl," opening at the Ritz theater Sunday. In the film Adolphe Menjou is seen as Miss Durbin's father, a musician who, with 100 fellow artists, seeks recognition of talent and a chance for a livelihood. Alice Brady portrays a society matron who promises Deanna to sponsor the orchestra. The rich woman flounces off to Europe and leaves Menjou and Deanna in the lurch. The fight to win fame and fortune makes up the balance of the story.

Discussion of Youth Group Sunday to Be Based on Talk by Pastor.

"Why Live?" will be the topic of the Community Christian Youth Forum at its weekly meeting at 7 p. m. Sunday at the United Presbyterian church.

Members of the forum who will participate in the panel discussion are Margaret Black, W. E. Wygant, jr., Charles Atwell, and William Ahrendt. Other members of the forum will be given an opportunity to take part in the discussion.

A fellowship program will be held by the group beginning at 6 p. m., during which a period of singing will be held. Wednesday at 7 p. m. private interviews will be held for young people at the United Presbyterian church under the sponsorship of the forum.

CHRISTIAN CHOIR GIVES PROGRAM

Solo parts will be taken by Miss Helen Dickson, Mrs Paul Zimmerman, Mrs Lois Shuey, and Mrs. C. B. Swaidner.

MIXED PRICES RULE MARKET PROCEEDINGS

Dun & Bradstreet Week-End Survey Helps to Bolster Stock Sentiment.

NEW YORK—Mixed prices ruled in today's early stock market proceedings.

Helping to bolster market sentiment was the week-end survey of Dun & Bradstreet reporting a sharp bulge in Christmas shopping with retail sales for the country as a whole topping the preceding week by 10 to 30 per cent.

On the final lap of gift purchasing, the review added, shoppers jammed stores until the late evening closing hour with some merchants enjoying the largest volume for the week on record. Shrinking retail inventories were said to have been indicated in rush re-orders to wholesalers.

JAPS SEND U. S. 'FULL APOLOGY'

All Punished In Bombing of Panay, Answer to Protest From Washington Says.

peatedly given against infringement or unwarranted interference with rights or interests of the United States and other third powers."

Receives Message.

The note was handed to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew by Foreign Minister Koki Hirota.

It set forth that "the Japanese government is studying carefully every possible means of achieving more effectively the above stated aims, while they already have taken steps to ascertain, in still closer contact with American authorities in China, the whereabouts of American interests and nationals' and to improve the means of communicating intelligence thereof speedily and effectively to authorities on the spot."

"Although the attack" on the Panay and three Standard Oil vessels on the Yangtze river above Nanking Dec. 12—was "due to a mistake," the commander of the flying force which did the bombing "was immediately removed from his post and recalled on the grounds of failure to take fullest measures of precaution," the note said.

"Moreover the fleet staff members and the commander of the flying squadron and all others responsible have been duly dealt with according to law. The Japanese government are thus endeavoring to preclude absolutely all possibility of a recurrence of incidents of similar character."

Hirota took cognizance of United States contentions that the bombing was in violation of American rights thusly:

"As regards the circumstances surrounding the present unfortunate incident, I desire to state that, while it is concluded in your excellency's that the incident resulted from disregard of American rights by Japanese armed forces, it was entirely due to a mistake..."

Commander Tells of Panay Bombing.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Panay's wounded commander reported officially today that the American gunboat was sunk without warning by Japanese naval planes, which he saw flew as low as "perhaps one or two hundred feet" to drop their bombs.

Lieut. Commander James J. Hughes also said the Yangtze river craft was marked with huge flags when the attack occurred on Dec. 12. The weather was clear and there was "good visibility," he noted.

His report, giving the first official eye-witness account of the bombing that has strained relations with Japan, was made public by the navy department after having been read by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull.

Its content already has been sent to Ambassador Grew at Tokyo to bolster the American demand for apologies, indemnities and guarantees.

Hughes' detiled, chronological story was dispatched by radio from Shanghai in advance of the findings of a formal board of inquiry. That report will be published tomorrow.

Hughes related:

1. Three hours before the first unexpected aerial onslaught by two naval planes, the Panay was boarded by a Japanese army officer, who vainly sought information on the movements of Chinese troops.

2. The first attack came without warning from two Japanese naval planes which power-dived from an altitude of "about 4,000 feet."

3. The Panay, marked by two horizontal American flags 18 by 14 feet freshly painted on her top decks, was subjected to 56 minutes of intensive bombing and machine-gunning. The commander estimated the little ship must have received 24 direct hits.

4. Hughes, severely wounded by the first bomb explosion, said he was informed two small boats bearing wounded to the river bank were machine-gunned by the attacking planes.

5. Lying wounded on the shore after his sinking ship had been abandoned, he heard the rattle of machine guns and was informed that an armed Japanese boat was firing on the Panay.

6. Everyone aboard the gunboat, loaded with embassy officials and refugees from Nanking, 20 miles downstream, "acted with fine courage and initiative." Three men lost their lives.

As Westinghouse's New Sign Made Its Debut

A candle lit the new Westinghouse sign, perched high atop the company's new warehouse and office last night. Picture at the top shows the sign, in readiness to operate. It's 27 feet high and 200 feet long (if you can see the man at the top of the "s" in the word Westinghouse, you can get an idea of the size of the letters.) Center picture shows how the sign was lit, with the light from a Christmas candle exciting a photo-electric cell, which turned on a relay that lit the sign. A. E. Allen, vice president of the company (seated at desk) tries out the photo-electric cell. Standing (left to right) are R. D. Lindsay, of The News-Journal; Paul W. Williams, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Judge C. H. Huston, president of the C. of C.; R. E. Imhoff, the company's sales manager, and C. L. Van Derau, manager of manufacturing. In the lower photo, Miss Carolyn Allen, daughter of the company president, actually lights the huge sign.

ber of the churches arranging midnight ceremonies.

Mayor Earl A. McFarland will greet the audience at the park which will be followed by a program of carols under the direction of Commander L. A. Cook of the American Legion.

Also included in the program will be solo and duet numbers by Mrs. Catherine Crittenden and Miss Helen Sheets, vocalists.

The audience will be invited to join in the singing of familiar carols and a loudspeaker system will carry the songs to a wide area surrounding the park.

The public sing, first ever attempted in the city on so large a scale, will be sponsored by the Mansfield Public Parks association, the Retail Merchants association, the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts. Edward Wylie is general chairman of the program committee.

Earlier in the evening groups of singers will sing carols at Prospect, Liberty, North Lake and Johns parks.

Christmas music will feature religious services at eight of the city's churches tonight. Services will be held at St. Peter's Catholic church, St. Matthew's, St. Mark's and St. Luke's, St. Paul's and First Lutheran churches, Grace Episcopal church and the Park Avenue Baptist church.

NEEDY SHARE IN HOLIDAY JOYS

Muster-Cheers Distribute 700 Baskets; Delano Lodge Aids 350 Others.

Salvation Army, Jane Williams of The News-Journal and Mrs. Kathryne Bancroft of the Community Christmas office were in charge of the application cards at the Salvation Army headquarters.

Commander Cook and Herbert Gibbs of the American Legion checked the baskets to see that every man, woman and child in the line received a full share of food.

All of the Muster-Cheer supplies were purchased with funds raised at the annual Christmas show last Saturday night and from donations from individuals, business firms and organizations.

The News-Journal, the American Legion and the Warner Brothers' Ohio theater make up the trio of Muster-Cheers.

At 3 p. m. today the Salvation Army will stage a Christmas party for some 450 children at the Army headquarters. Candy, nuts and apples and a toy will be distributed as a "treat" for the kiddies. Funds for the party were donated by the public in the Salvation Army kettles on the streets.

Another party for youngsters will be given at 2 p. m. at the Volunteers of America headquarters at 278 North Main street, where the annual Christmas "treats" will be distributed.

TRACE LOTTERY SLIP IN SLAYING

Police Check Clue In Gang Slaying At Steubenville.

STEUBENVILLE —(AP)—Investigators attempted today, Sheriff Robert Bates said, to trace a numberless lottery slip found in an abandoned automobile believed to have been used by the shotgun slayers of Daniel Visnich, 26.

The "numbers racket" slip, Bates said, apparently was issued Tuesday.

It bore initials corresponding, the sheriff said, to those of an alleged Steubenville numbers operator, who was questioned and "released temporarily."

Visnich was shot down Wednesday as he and Daniel Racknac, 28, left a stag party.

slightest grades in the city from 7 to 9 a. m. while the street maintenance crews worked to combat the ice with salt and cinders. Many workers left their cars at home and trudged carefully over glassy sidewalks to work in the early morning hours.

By 10 a. m. the county's roads were in good condition, Arthur Fletcher, state highway department superintendent, reported after 14 trucks were pressed into service on main routes in the county.

Fletcher said the icy condition was general over Ohio, but worse in the Lake Erie region. Rising temperatures began destruction of the ice in the southern parts of the state soon after daylight, highway reports said.

In Mansfield, six trucks manned by a dozen street employes were used to spread 18 tons of rock salt on the streets before 10 a. m., according to Charles Hebel, superintendent of the streets department.

Despite the slippery thoroughfares, no injuries to pedestrians or motorists were reported to city and county authorities. There were numerous minor collisions of automobiles.

The rain and higher temperatures saved the day for vacation-bound motorists who crowded the highways today, road officials declared. Had the ice remained, Christmas traffic would have been paralyzed and many people would have been forced to delay their trips until tomorrow, it was said.

400 INSURGENTS DEFY HEAVY FIRE

Doomed Regiment Resists Drive By Loyalists In Teruel.

TERUEL, Spain—(AP)—A semi-circle of victorious steel blocked Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Aragon forces today from succoring a diehard band of 400 insurgents apparently doomed by the government conquest of this strategic provincial capital.

The beleaguered 400 kept up a drumfire with machine-guns and rifles from a dozen buildings in an old quarter of the city.

Their supplies of water had been cut off, it was believed, but the band had plenty of food to bulwark their forlorn hope of rescue.

Dispatches from Madrid, 135 miles west of Teruel, said the embattled 400 faced a government ultimatum to surrender or die.

fore it can undertake the improvement.

The Gascoigne report proposed the issuance of water department bonds, to be retired from department revenues. Council has argued the problem at various times in the past, some members taking the stand that water department revenues would be insufficient unless rates are raised. Others have favored issuing general bonds, subject to popular approval.

Consideration of the financing question is expected to come before the new council which takes office Jan. 1, although there will be but few changes in its makeup.

navy yard on Puget Sound yesterday.

Hennessy said he did not know the letters' contents.

The government men acted in secrecy, but the San Francisco Chronicle said customs agents and postal inspectors have redoubled their efforts in recent weeks to intercept letters of a suspicious nature, addressed to undisclosed far eastern destinations.

Seizure at Los Angeles harbor of a 100-foot tuna clipper, the Nancy Hanks, registered to an American-born Japanese, was followed by announcement by federal officials that another, and possibly five more boats suspected of Japanese ownership, would be detained.

Owned by Jap Subject.

They alleged the Nancy Hanks actually was owned by Y. Suzuki, a Japanese subject, although flying the American flag and entering port duty free for more than five years.

A libel-in-admiralty action, filed against the clipper, would allow for its sale for damages, if upheld. Nearly $1,000,000 in unpaid duties are involved for the seven suspected craft, federal officers asserted.

Meanwhile several destroyers prowled through southern California waters.

They "tailed" ships, including the Japanese freighter Kanai Maru, into Los Angeles harbor and at San Diego the navy patrol halted and investigated several fishing boats.

It was reported here the Mexican government had ordered gunboats to keep a close check on Japanese fishing boats off the coasts of Lower California and Sonora, following allegations alien hydrographic experts were sounding and charting the waters.

Commissioners Drive Sharpest Bargain on WPA Work

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

AN EVIDENCE of the confusion which exists within the Roosevelt administration is presented in the striking lack of accord among its spokesmen as to where to place the blame for what they call the "business recession," there being a general disposition among them to avoid the word depression.

Until recently, when it came to denunciation, there was almost complete harmony on the New Deal side. Everybody sang in the same key. Every untoward thing was blamed on the "Tories." That was the general heading under which all those who dissented from the Roosevelt policies were lumped, but the changes were rung particularly upon the "Economic Royalists" and "Business Greed." That was the note sounded by the president and echoed all down the line. It is interesting that there no longer seems to be unity of thought on this subject.

FOR EXAMPLE, Mr. Kennedy, "the miracle man," who is soon to go to London, upbraids business men for failing to make their "contribution" in Washington and says disaster threatens if they do not stop "bellyaching." Mr. Roosevelt, however, in his recent press conference absolved businessmen from the responsibility for "inculcating a psychology of fear" and blamed the press. Businessmen, as a whole, he said, are not fearful of the administration; it is the newspapers which are responsible.

AND HE "wonders what they gain" by it. It is not surprising he is puzzled. Anyone who can figure how the newspapers, which certainly suffer as much as any other industry—and more than most—from a business recession, can profit by "inculcating a psychology of fear" is entitled to high rank as a figurer. However, that's the most recent Roosevelt view, which he went to considerable lengths to expound at a press conference attended by men who, of course, knew better but nonetheless accurately reported the presidential indictment of their own business in reports which were printed as written on the first page of practically every important newspaper in the country. That fact, it would seem, in itself, would be a more or less convincing answer to the Roosevelt charge.

THE RADICAL GROUP among the president's supporters have been engaged in promoting the fantastic notion that the "business recession" has been deliberately engineered by some twenty-odd leading capitalists and conspicuous figures in the business world for the sake of discrediting Mr. Roosevelt and wrecking the New Deal. While it is true there is neither logic nor sense in this idea of a capitalistic conspiracy, it is somewhat more dramatic than either the Kennedy picture of businessmen courting disaster by "bellyaching" or the Roosevelt assertion that, with a few sinister exceptions, businessmen are really not afraid of his policies and it is all the fault of the newspapers.

IT IS PERHAPS, worth noting that apparently it does not occur to Mr. Roosevelt or to Mr. Kennedy or to any other administration spokesman that any responsibility for the present condition of business possibly could attach to the New Deal policies or performances. Or, if that thought does occur to them, they do not consider it worth mentioning. And, as there is no nourishment now in calling names, as the desire of everybody should be to "co-operate with the administration in any move calculated to restore business confidence and allay fear, and as this is the Christmas season, it will not be mentioned here.

BUT IT SEEMS not amiss to suggest that some method be found to co-ordinate the administration's ideas as to where responsibility really rests. It might be worth while to name a co-ordinator for this purpose. Mr. James Roosevelt is the official co-ordinator in other matters. The scope of his activities might be widened so as to discover whether it is better, in the current propaganda, to put the blame for existing conditions on "bellyaching" businessmen, as Mr. Kennedy does; on the newspapers, as the president does, or on a conspiracy of twenty or so great capitalists, as do his radical advisers.

In the last two days there has arisen still another element disposed to put the finger on Congress, which makes the need for a co-ordinator plainer and opens wide the door for the suspicions of buck passing strategy, which have been circulated rather freely in recent weeks.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There's more sound but less fury over it in Hollywood after these 10 years of talkies.

Stuart Erwin brought that fact to mind, telling of a recent day's work in "Checkers." It was on the same stage where Stu made his first film in the squawkie era of the talkies. This time they didn't bother about sound-proofing, didn't bother when extraneous noises crept in during a scene. But then—there was awe, mystery, confusion about this thing called sound.

Roger Heman, once a prop man, now head sound man at 20th Century-Fox, supplies the obvious answer: "We know a great deal more about it now. Then we had to guess, and we couldn't do tricks with the sound track."

Those tricks, as practiced today in every studio, make weird dreams commonplace actualities. The sound department can "erase," figuratively, any noise it doesn't want on the sound track. It can camouflage unwanted sounds with others and leave the audience no wiser. It can take a strip of bad sound track and put it into commercially acceptable form.

But in "You Can't Have Everything" there was a scene in which, as recorded, the patter of rain blurred the dialogue. Photographically the scene was perfect, and the company now was engaged on other scenes. What did they do? They called the actors to the recording room, projected the scene on a screen without sound, had them read their lines into a microphone to synchronize with their screened lip movements. Afterward, on another sound track, they took from the sound library—nearly 3,000,000 feet of assorted noises—a recording of more gentle rainfall, and super-imposed this on the dialogue. Then they played back the result, with other sound tracks containing desired sound effects, and recorded the composite on one final sound track.

In "Second Honeymoon"—that pier scene between Loretta Young and Tyrone Power — something went wrong. In the projection room Miss Young's voice became a shrieking whine. The sounders "filtered" out the screech, made the sound true, and superimposed, to cover any remaining imperfections, the sounds of sea waves and crickets.

They can do these things easily, but they can't—contrary to fable—do much to improve a bad microphone voice. They can't, for example, make a male falsetto record like a booming bass. Perhaps they could, but the beauteous heroine also would sound like a foghorn, which would be embarrassing.

There are still interferences which they haven't conquered. Airplanes which zoom over outdoor sets, or any sustained noise of the sort.

Mattson Kidnap-Murder Remains Mystery

HOLIDAY CRIME STILL UNSOLVED AS YEAR PASSES

Bearded Kidnaper Who Took Boy From Tacoma Home Eludes Crack Sleuths.

TACOMA, Wash. — (INS) — The end of the year leaves unsolved one of the nation's most sensational and shocking crimes—the kidnaping and murder of 10-year-old Charles Mattson.

On December 27, 1936, the boy was snatched from his Christmas decorated home by a masked and bearded intruder.

Fifteen days later Charles' nude body was found in the snow by a rabbit hunter, near Everett, Wash., some 60 miles from his home.

Two nights after Christmas Dr. William W. Mattson, drove with his wife to the home of friends to spend the evening.

In their own large and beautiful home, they left their three children, Charles, William, jr., 16, and Muriel, 14, and a friend from Seattle Alice Chatfield, 15. The youngsters were popping corn and playing games.

Suddenly their was a crash of glass, and the door of the sun porch was flung open. A masked, bearded man entered, brandishing a pistol.

He spoke a thick, heavy accent, indicating he was of foreign birth. He demanded money. William told him they kept their money in the bank. But he searched their pockets.

Finding none, he mumbled, "This ought to be better." He seized Charles, ran out of the door and disappeared into the darkness.

He tossed behind him on the porch a crude note, written on a toy typewriter, demanding $28,000 ransom. In accordance with instructions in the note, Dr. Mattson inserted a series of advertisements in the "personal" column of a Seattle afternoon newspaper.

The last message bore a note of fear in the following line, "In view of the lapse of time also desire new proof my son is alive and well."

That advertisement was carried in the paper the day Gordon Morrow, tracking a rabbit, stumbled onto the little body in the woods near his home.

Friends of a Mansfield music teacher and automobile dealer are still talking about a trade made by them this week. According to the story, the teacher was looking for a small car to drive back and forth to work. The dealer, a musician himself, said he was in the market for a string bass, and after some dickering the teacher agreed to trade a string bass he had at his studio, for the small car the dealer had in his showroom. And both parties are happy.

GET $14 FOR EACH $1 FROM COUNTY FUNDS

Schools Second, City Third In Getting Biggest Return From $1,152,239 Program.

In the tremendous expenditure of WPA funds in Richland county in the past two years, county commissioners turned out to be the best business men in the county's 20 sub-divisions.

Of the $1,152,239 spent on WPA projects in the county, the commissioners drove a sharper bargain from the federal government in expending its funds. The board of education ranked second, and the city of Mansfield third with the city of Shelby fourth.

Of the total amount of $210,356 spent on county projects, the WPA allocated $177,748, while the county spent $30,990. The WPA allocated $299,075, and the city $134,183, for a total of $433,269 spent on city projects.

Schools Get $18,435.

The board of education received $18,435 from WPA, and spent $6,344 for a total of $25,410, while Shelby received $132,645, and spent $53,891 for the total of $186,567.

Figures submitted from Washington by WPA show that county commissioners obtained $14 from the government for every dollar the county spent on WPA improvements. The board of education made a four for one deal, while the city of Mansfield and the city of Shelby drove approximately a three to one deal.

Of a total of $433,269 spent in Mansfield for completed projects, more than $170,000 went for the improving of the various streets and sidewalks, another $170,000 was spent for improvements to the sewer and water systems, and nearly $90,000 was

HUNTER NAMES 8 TO CITY JOBS

Mayor-Elect Plays 'Santa,' Fills Posts For New Administration.

Mayor-elect Claude M. Hunter today presented "Christmas gifts" to eight persons in the form of appointments to city jobs in the new administration that takes over the city building Jan. 1.

Only one of the number is a present employe. Four of the appointees will be under Fred E. Lingafelter, who was selected last Saturday as secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department.

Mrs. Mary Deibler, 32½ North Diamond street, was named as stenographer-clerk in the water, sewer and garbage department, a position she formerly held for four years during the administration of former Mayor Charles M. Lantz. For the past two years she has been employed in the same department as a bookeeper. She succeeds Miss Mary Hughes who was appointed by Mayor Earl A. McFarland.

Succeeding Mrs. Deibler as bookeeper will be Miss Mary Jane Bellore, 315 Wayne street, who for the past six weeks has been employed in the office of County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

Alfred R Lommatzsch, 27 East Prospect street, was appointed as meter reader in the water department. He is employed by the Isaly Dairy company as a salesman. Lommatzsch filled an unexpired term in city council several years ago.

Mrs. Della Farber Gandert, 94 Ausdale avenue, was named to succeed Miss Gladys Lash as secretary to the mayor and service-safety director.

Miss Esther Snyder, 65 Bartley avenue, employed in the office at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, will replace Miss Cleopy Zaras as telephone switchboard operator. Miss Zaras was appointed by McFarland when he took office in 1936.

Howard Zerbe, 73 Poplar street, was appointed as collector in the waterworks department and Samuel C. Martin, 14 Blanche street, was named custodian of the North Lake park pavilion. Philo Phifer, a former truck driver in the garbage department under several administrations, returns to that position after the first of the year.

DAVEY SIGNS FOUR CHRISTMAS PARDONS, FREES LIFE TERMER

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey issued four Christmas pardons today, releasing Inez Palmer of Vinton county who has been held in the Marysville reformatory since she was 16 years old, and restoring full citizenship rights to three other persons now on parole. They are:

Halton P. Siddall, former Cincinnatian and now an assistant professor of dentistry at the University of St. Louis.

Matthew D. Graham of Toledo, employed in the federal postal service.

Harry Somensky, formerly of Toledo, now engaged in the men's furnishing business in Detroit.

The pardon will end 10 years of penal servitude for Miss Palmer who was serving a life term for the murder of her sweetheart's father.

The governor said Mrs. Marguerite Reilly, superintendent of the Marysville institution, concurred with Common Pleas Judge W. J. Jones, prosecuting attorney of Vinton county when Miss Palmer pleaded guilty to the murder of William Stout. He quoted Judge Jones as saying:

"She was a mere child of 16 or 17 years, and I feel that her debt to society has been paid and, therefore, recommend for her a full pardon."

Siddall, son of a wealthy Equality, Ill., banker, pleaded guilty by agreement to second degree murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment in 1924, but has been on parole for 10 years. He was accused of the first degree murder of a friend and fellow student at Ohio Dental college, John A. Mazzola. Siddal claimed self-defense.

During his parole period, Siddall completed his professional training and received a degree from the university where he now is teaching.

MAPS INQUIRY

Senate's 'Graft' Committee to Open Hearings Next Week.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— With both the senate and the house in adjournment over the Christmas holidays, a special committee, appointed by the upper chamber to conduct a sweeping inquiry into charges of "legalized graft" in state departments, laid plans today to open hearings sometime next week.

It was learned reliably that several persons had volunteered information and informed sources said the committee would begin with the larger departments, such as the liquor and highway divisions.

Former State Sen. James Metzenbaum of Cleveland, chief counsel for the probing body, said he had not decided on what day the hearings would begin.

Although the senate held a brief session yesterday afternoon, and then recessed probably until after Jan. 1, it did not consider a bill that would appropriate $40,000 for the committee's expenses.

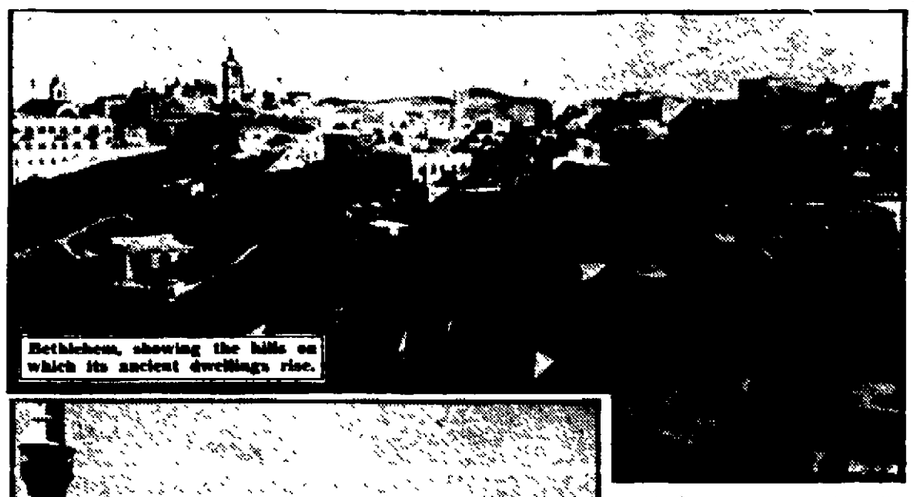
Tears and Terror Grip Land of Christ's Birth



Bethlehem, showing the hills on which its ancient dwellings rise.

British troops in Jerusalem prepared for outbreaks.

At the season when Christians throughout the world pay homage to their Prince of Peace, tears and terror grip Palestine, with armament bristling along roads where Christ walked. December, 1937, marks the twentieth anniversary of Great Britain's occupation of Jerusalem under terms of the League of Nations mandate. It also marks continuance of the seventh major outbreak of Arab protest against administration of the mandate. The present phrase of Arab revolt began when Britain proposed division of Palestine into three parts: an independent Jewish state; an independent Arab state, and a narrow corridor providing access to Christian holy places from the Mediterranean The Arabs, inhabitants of the country for 13 centuries, seek complete control over the territory.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1937.

Drive carefully this week-end—recollection of a holiday tragedy is among the most unpleasant memories.

Alfred M. Landon made himself clear on the 1940 presidential nomination just in time to enjoy a Merry Christmas.

Warden Lawes says no former Boy Scout was ever an inmate of Sing Sing—Boy Scout principles and practices do not mix with criminality.

Christmas Ideals and Realities.

CHRISTMAS comes again to a world in which many people are not yet prepared for its symbolism of "peace on earth, good will to men."

Christmas, dedicated to commemoration of the Prince of Peace, finds bitter feuds in the land where this great festival originated. There is ruthless war in China, precipitated by Japanese aggression. Europe is an armed camp, with active warfare in Spain and preparations in neighboring countries that might easily bring on another general war.

The formula for permanent peace—among unselfish right-thinkers—seems a simple one, yet the traits of greed, envy, jealousy and intolerance not only stand in the way of peace among nations but also cause discord and strife between individuals and groups.

Even in the United States, where civilization is assumed to be as advanced as anywhere in the world, there is constant evidence of elements similar to those which cause wars between nations—a lack of understanding of basic principles of human relationships and a failure to realize the interdependence of people and nations.

Progress is being made. This becomes apparent each year as more and more people give evidence of thoughtfulness for others rather than centering interest in themselves.

Call it religion, or morals, or humanity—wherever Christmas is observed it can be noticed that this holiday tends to bring out the best qualities of mankind. It is in the spirit of men, women and children, as manifested at Christmastime, that the world will eventually find its way to peace and good will.

Human Power—For What?

TWO sentences in recent news stories from Spain tell more than the actual news of towns taken or troops defeated.

One is from Ernest Hemingway's description of the government offensive at Teruel. "Horses could never have stood up under the conditions of this offensive. Cars had their radiators frozen and their cylinder blocks cracked. But men could stand it, and did."

The other is from a United Press report of the same battle. "The streets of Madrid, where fourteen children and two aged persons were killed last night by raiding rebel bombers, were filled tonight with crowds rejoicing at the prospect of the victory and the annihilation or capture of 60,000 enemy troops."

Such courage and such ghastly rejoicing! If the same endurance and singleness of purpose and enthusiasm for success were put into the striving for co-operation and human good, what a different place Spain would be, and other parts of the world, too!

The Drunken Driving Problem.

NEWSPAPERS mold public opinion faster than any other agency and should be enlisted in the campaign to end drunken driving," says W. A. Gabrielson, Honolulu police chief, in a paper read at the recent National Safety Congress.

It is reliably estimated that drunken driving has at least doubled since the repeal of prohibition. Today it is one of the principal causes of motor accidents. Surveys carried on in various states indicate that liquor is a factor in 10 to 20 per cent of all accidents involving a fatality or a major injury. In the words of the chief of the California State Highway Control, the drunken driving evil "continues to grow unabated. . . . Intoxicating liquor is playing too great a part in the present mounting death toll. . . . "

The "alcohol-mixed-with-gasoline" problem must be attacked from a number of angles. In many communities police and prosecuting authorities are more or less indifferent to it, and are too prone to let the use of a little "pull" reduce a serious drunken driving charge. While proven scientific methods for establishing whether or not a person is legally intoxicated are known, they have not been widely adopted, with the result that many cases are taken to court without sufficient evidence to justify a conviction. Worst of all, perhaps, a large part of the public tacitly condones drunken driving by refusing to demand rigorous and impartial laws and methods to detect and punish it.

Alcohol at the wheel kills thousands of Americans each year—and injures tens of thousands. It must be stopped.

Africa Grows Dull.

AFRICA is becoming must less interesting, says Windsor T. White, a returning game hunter. It's too civilized.

"For one thing," he complains, "natives are wearing more clothes. That may help business but doesn't add to the interest of the country. It isn't picturesque."

Even the animals seem less interesting. There are so many of them, and they are so approachable. In a couple of weeks' travel he saw 50,000 to 100,000 zebras, antelope and other circus beasts. Great herds of them roam the plains as our buffaloes used to.

It must spoil the illusion, too, when you travel almost anywhere by airplane or motor car. Mr. White covered 7,000 miles by automobile. Other travelers have reported that it's a common thing now to shoot lions from an auto.

Under the government plan of allowing thirty years to pay for a home it would seem that school children should be getting their building project under way.

If Mae West still insists on Biblical roles a star part in a dramatized version of Sodom and Gomorrah might offer possibilities.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world—so there are naturally more of some kinds than of others.

The tragedy of civilization is the man with no property but a job, and no certainty of that.

The Angels and the Shepherds. By B. Plockhorst

Christmas

Shepherds engaged in nightly task
Guarding their flocks beneath the mask
Of midnight calm, beheld a star
Gleaming in brilliance from afar.

Full of wonder they saw the path
Of silvery light that cleaved a swath
Of brightness over darkened hill.
Hopefully they followed until,

* * *

They reached a stable near an inn
Where two wand'rers rested within.
In the manger the Christ child lay,
Whom they worshiped in humble way.

* *

Wide-eyed and wondering a crowd
Of folk gathered round Mary, bowed.
And wise men entered her presence
Bearing gold, myrrh and frankincense.

* * *

The luminous star born that night
Gave to the world persistent light,
That each his way might better wend,
Till the approach of his destined end.

A Christmas Prayer

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FATHER—As I read this Christmas story, help me to see that it can never be old, nor was ever new...but was always the dream that lay hidden in the heart of man. And as love and hope and that shining vision of good-will were born to those simple workers, on that first Nativity, so may they be born to me today...singing in the dark sky of my bewilderment...glowing in the poor manger of my heart.

"AND IT CAME TO PASS IN THOSE DAYS, THAT THERE WENT OUT A DECREE, FROM CAESAR AUGUSTUS, THAT ALL THE WORLD SHOULD BE TAXED...AND ALL WENT TO BE TAXED...AND JOSEPH ALSO WENT UP FROM GALILEE...WITH MARY, HIS ESPOUSED WIFE, BEING GREAT WITH CHILD....

"AND SO IT WAS THAT, WHILE THEY WERE THERE, THE DAYS WERE ACCOMPLISHED...AND SHE BROUGHT FORTH HER FIRSTBORN SON, AND WRAPT HIM IN SWADDLING CLOTHES, AND LAID HIM IN A MANGER.

"AND THERE WERE...SHEPHERDS ABIDING IN THE FIELD, KEEPING WATCH OVER THEIR FLOCK BY NIGHT. AND, LO, THE ANGEL OF THE LORD CAME UPON THEM, AND THE GLORY OF THE LORD SHONE ROUND ABOUT THEM...AND THEY WERE SORE AFRAID."

FATHER—I too watch through my long night of loneliness and fear...and, often, bitter hate. Look down upon my darkness...pity my weakness and uncertainty. And into my night send the angel of a finer, braver vision and the glory of a greater, kindlier hope.

"AND THE ANGEL SAID UNTO THEM: FEAR NOT, FOR BEHOLD I BRING YOU GOOD TIDINGS OF GREAT JOY, WHICH SHALL BE TO ALL THE PEOPLE. FOR UNTO YOU IS BORN THIS DAY...A SAVIOR, WHICH IS CHRIST THE LORD."

* * *

Clean me of my fear, too, my Father, and of the selfishness that walls me in. Open my eyes, today, to see the vast, far-reaching need of "all the people." Open my heart to pity that need—and despise those evil things which cause it. And give me the courage to believe in a better chance for us all...and the wisdom to realize that Love has the power to clean and save us from any misery.

* * *

"(AND THE ANGEL CRIED)—THIS SHALL BE A SIGN UNTO YOU: YE SHALL FIND THE BABE (YOUR SAVIOR) WRAPPED IN SWADDLING CLOTHES, LYING IN A MANGER."

I have been stupid, my Father—seeking salvation in the false and foolish things of life—in money and fame, shrewd scheming and glittering show. Strip me tonight of these sickly fancies...guide me to my real salvation, Your deathless Truth, which lies waiting in the plain, real things of life; in honest, friendly folk and common toil. And make me see that, as that lowly manger was sanctified by love, so may my desk or counter or kitchen table be made holy by loving service.

"AND SUDDENLY THERE WAS WITH THE ANGEL A MULTITUDE OF THE HEAVENLY HOST PRAISING GOD AND SAYING—GLORY TO GOD IN THE HIGHEST, AND ON EARTH PEACE, GOOD WILL TOWARD MEN."

* * *

A song for the shepherds, a star for the Wise Men, a new-born Vision for all the wretched, fear-bound world...such were Your gifts on that first Christmas day, my Father. Renew those gifts for me today, I pray. Give me new hope, new cheer. And in my darkened mind and heart now place—

A STAR! A SONG!

Amen.

Christmas Bells

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Ring the bells, the Christmas bells,
Let their message go
Over all the world that each
May the glad words know.

"Peace on earth, good will to men."
Sounds the theme afar.
Let it glow as tenderly
As the Bethlehem star

That above Judean hills
Shepherds saw to heed.
Let the words rest in each heart,
Fill its deepest need.

Let them tell of brotherhood,
Succor those oppressed.
Lift the weary, bring new peace
To the sore distressed.

"Peace on earth, good will to men,"
Sound it early—late—
Message that could cure the world
Of its greed and hate.

Ring it, sing it, until each
Heart with love you fill.
Ring the bells, the Christmas bells,
"Peace—on—earth—good will."

Bring Back Wright Plane.

A bill is before congress to appropriate money to bring the first successful airplane built and flown by the Wright brothers back to this country from a London museum. Orville Wright sent the plane there several years ago. He said then he would leave it abroad so long as the Smithsonian Institution did not give recognition to the Wright brothers' achievement with their plane over that of S. P. Langley.

Certainly by this time the works of the pioneers of the air can be stated correctly and dispassionately. The Wright brothers started the air defense construction work for the United States government. Americans generally understand and appreciate the great contributions of these modest inventors.

While Orville Wright is still living, it would be a worthy gesture on the part of the government to pay full homage to him. There should be no appearance of reluctance to give official recognition where it is due.—Toledo Blade.

Recalling a Christmas Incident of Early Days

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Christmas story:

It is Tuesday, Dec. 23, 1783. Our Revolutionary war has ended. The last of the British redcoats sailed from New York in November. The colonies, by grace of good luck, good management and good friends, have risen to the dignity of a nation. On that day the journal of congress, the predecessor of the present congressional record, says:

"Congress assembled: present as before." Those "present as before" included delegates from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Pensylvania (it is spelled that way in the journal), Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina. They are meeting in Annapolis because of trouble with soldiers in Philadelphia.

On December 20, these delegates had decided that "it is the sense of congress that seven states in congress assembled are competent to receive the resignation of the commander-in-chief." That is George Washington. He has won the war. He wants to quit and go home to Mount Vernon for Christmas. He is "General Washington" now. A long time will elapse before he is recalled to become "President Washington."

On December 22, the members of congress had decided how, as the dignified governing body of a new nation, they should conduct themselves in receiving the resignation of the commander-in-chief of their army.

Hats Off to General.

"MEMBERS are to be seated and covered" when the general enters, says the journal. "When the general rises to make his address and also when he retires, he is to bow to congress, which they are to return by uncovering without bowing."

So on December 23, congress is all set. Washington arrives with his aides. He is resplendent in his bright uniform. He will surrender the commission he received from this same congress seven years before.

"According to order," says the journal, "His Excellency the commander-in-chief was admitted to a public audience." He sat down. "Silence was ordered," says the journal, but the statement is scratched out. At an invitation from the presiding officer of the congress, General Washington arose.

"Mr. President," he says. "The great events on which my resignation depended, having at length taken place, I have now the honor of offering my sincere congratulations to congress and of presenting myself before them, to surrender into their hands the trust committed to me, and to claim the indulgence of retiring from the service of my country.

"Happy in the confirmation of our independence and sovereignty, and pleased with the opportunity afforded the United States of becoming a respectable nation, I resign with satisfaction the appointment I accepted with diffidence; a diffidence in my abilities to accomplish so arduous a task; which, however, was superseded by a confidence in the rectitude of our cause, the support of the supreme power of the union, and the patronage of heaven."

Christmas Eve Business.

THERE was more from the general in grave and dignified tone. The president of the congress, in equally grave tone, received the resignation and thanked the general. It was not recorded in the journal whether the general bowed upon leaving the chamber, or whether congress lifted its hat without bowing.

Next day, the day before Christmas, congress meets again briefly. George Washington perhaps is forgotten for the moment. But congress can't seem to forget postoffices. Placidly the journal records that on motion of Mr. Thomas Jefferson, the postmaster general was ordered "to furnish an extra post or posts" whenever required by the president of the congress.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

People Appreciate True Art.

DURING THE holidays there is such a wealth of good music, of great orchestras, of operas, of ballets, that life takes on a rich glow.

Americans enjoy this form of expressiveness of the soul more now than any other nation—if attendance figures and radio listeners mean anything.

In the larger cities, grand opera and symphony concerts are so popular that seats must be bought weeks in advance. A concert series in one city was sold out months ahead. The auditorium for that series seats 3,700.

People appreciate true art, true worth.

BUT THE STAGE——?

The stage—from which the screen still derives—is lacking, however, in the fantasy in which man sees his dreams mirrored.

Opera, symphony, ballet soar to heaven with their dreams and their universal hopes and longings. They lift one to the heights.

But the world of the stage has advanced not a step from Shakespeare's day, 330 days ago. The Great Dreams of the stage still are in Shakespeare.

There have been minor dreams, ah yes, and too few of them, but the "great" plays and motion pictures which give us pleasure on the modern stage and screen are merely feeble candles against the glow of a sun.

Their warmth is ephemeral, their life is but a flicker.

COME FORTH!

Come forth, therefore, you genius still unborn!

Give us a fantasy, dream that will lift us to heaven.

Let us see our hopes and longings mirrored—let us go up on Olympus to dwell among the gods an hour or two.

Or is this an industrial, political age when the genius-dramatist is not nurtured, when the poet plays upon a muted string one small note against the thunder of a changing time?

A CHILD KNOWS

It is strange how a small child knows the true value of certain visible arts. A fantasy with the greatest truths holds the attention of the smallest tot more than slapstick comedian or silly dancing girls. It is as we grow older that our senses are corrupted, that we cease to dream—and merely exist.

The old fables that have engendered such enduring operas, symphonies, ballets were stories that held children—and that still hold children, the children in us, reawakened by true art to elemental truth, basic emotions, real beauty.

Some such stage and movie plays will come along—fantasies with great truths encompassed—and the stage will assume a new and vaster significance in our life.

As Others See It

Under New Rules.

That old rule of jurisprudence no longer holds: Today a lunatic is assumed to be Napoleon unless proved otherwise. — Detroit News.

Potted Fruit.

Scenes in the night clubs these winter nights are reported pretty disorderly, when some stewed quince meets a fried peach and wants to do the big apple.—New York Sun.

The Barrier.

Doctors have more than socialized medicine to worry about. The department of agriculture estimates this year's crop of apples at 211,100,000 bushels.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Maybe Justified.

The mayor of Pawtucket has been fined for profanity in a dining car. You know how it is on the curves, when you miss your face with the coffee. — Atlanta Constitution.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

MANY enthusiasts for O. Henry stories when in the neighborhood of Irving Place drop into the saloon where he often hung out. His "Gifts of the Magi" from the New York World still adorns the wall. But there is little of the atmosphere one might expect.

No ancient card table, ringed with many glasses, nor free bowls of pretzels and pop corn and little glass hooduses filled with those valiant breath destroyers — cloves, coffee and bits of orange peel. The bartender is sophomoric and without a lion tamer's roach and Montana diamond tie pin.

Also the proprietor seemed unlike the fabled O. Henry hosts, but rather glum and unsmiling. Journalists know the bar largely because of its famous tosspot, a fellow on one of the high-brow magazines. He stands nightly drinking Scotch and soda, one after another, until the place closes.

The bartender declared the number of his drinks varied little. Usually 25. You could light a cigaret on his face and he stood practically in one spot with one pose. He re-lived days that were gone and wanted no intrusion upon his world of yesterday.

Mark Hellinger, in relaxing moments, is reputedly able to buck more brandies and walk out cold sober than any visitor to the local bodegas. But he is a hard worker and seldom gives cognac a play. Another record brandy drinker in the days of Tex Guinan was Bill Boyd, the stage actor. In the mood he would sit at a table alone and polish off a quart between after theater and sunup. In such a dolor he wanted no companions.

The musty statue of Puck over the entrance of the gloomy building once housing the magazine on Lafayette street has been brightened with a coat of gilt. Puck was once The New Yorker of its day, attracting the crack wits and artists of the period. Many now famous started in its pages.

There is no longer an open house for artists and writers, arrived or on the way up, such as the Sunday night rendezvous at the Fred Daytons' in the purlieus of Washington Square about 20 years ago. Dayton was an advertising executive and still is with the Conde Nast outfit. Every Sunday evening writers and artists went to the Daytons for a buffet froid supper with free drinks for those desiring them. Afterward guests sat around and talked. Perhaps Charlie Towne or Berton Braley would recite an original poem, maybe a whimsical tale of shy Oliver Herford or a new anagram game by Carolyn Wells. Everything was impromptu. The Daytons had no axe to grind. They merely liked artists and writers and enjoyed having them around.

Types: In most exclusive hotel dining rooms is usually the fellow you see walking deck on liners so avidly. Tall, mustached and the white shirt of his dinner jacket suggesting a concertina played by the mad King of Bavaria. He eats alone near the entrance, watching with frank gaze all who enter. His dishes are only ordered after careful thought and discussion with a captain. His drink is a single Scotch and soda with his dinner and afterward he sits smoking a cigar until waiters begin piling up tables. A Lonely Heart prospect!

The golden wedding celebration of the James Lord Pratts at Essex, Ct., recently proved the village smith still stands. Pratt at the age of 77 and still active is the ninth generation of village blacksmiths and the oldest business in one family ownership in America. The town turned out, providing the biggest day in the history of the place since the British burned it down in the year of 1813.

Thingumbobs: Marie Dressler was reputedly advised to go to Hollywood to look for a job by Myra Kingsley, the astrologist . . . Earl Carroll is to reverse the usual process by opening shows on the coast and bringing them to Broadway by easy stages.

They were discussing ingenuity in modern advertising and I could not help but recall the farmer in our town who drove in with apples in the fall—a sample apple stuck up on a pole in the whip socket.

Ashland County Couple Observes 50th Anniversary

NOVA—Wednesday was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Richards of this village, who 50 years ago exchanged wedding vows in the home of the bride, (nee Emma Worst) in a ceremony performed by Rev. Samuel Sprankel.

After their marriage in 1887, in the presence of invited guests, relatives and friends, the couple took up housekeeping on a farm two and one-half miles southwest of Nova.

For 30 years they managed the farm, and then moved to their present home in Nova, their entire lives having been spent in this county, with the exception of six years, which were spent in Lorain. Mr. Richards has also served as a salesman for the Norwalk firm of W. H. Wildman for 16 years.

Together they have been members of the Nova Methodist church for 50 years, and both serve in the church departments.

The anniversary will be observed Sunday, Dec. 26, when the Richards will receive at their home from 2 to 6 p. m.

Man Strayed, Wants Wife Back Now

By VIRGINIA LEE

WORRIED MOTHER has two small children and has found out that her husband is untrue to her. He is at the "dangerous age" of 40, she, Worried Mother, in her thirties, and the Other Woman, 20.

The husband started going astray a few months before the now six-month-old baby was born. His wife, out in the car with the children, saw him and the girl entering a beer parlor hand-in-hand.

Husband and wife are separated now, but the husband writes he wants his wife and children back. She feels her respect for him is gone, and she doesn't know what to do. She has no means of support. The girl in the case declares she loves him.

I can't help feeling that a husband who acts as yours has done is a small spoiled boy grown up. He feels he must have a thing because he wants it, regardless of consequences.

It happens so many times, but I think the wisest thing is to go back to him, or allow him to come to you. He may have recovered from his madness and go straight from now on. He may realize to what unhappiness such folly will lead. I feel that if you do not take him back and try to keep the home together for his and the children's sake, you may regret it. It is not an easy thing to do, I know, and if you cannot agree to let the matter drop as far as words go, when you are in your home again, better not go back. The children need their father and mother and home, but it will not help if that home is a place of discord. Do you think you are big enough to carry on for the children's sake? If he is sincerely sorry for what he has done—which I hope—he will gradually build up your trust again. People err, you know, and need forgiveness. "To err is human," the poet said, "to forgive, divine." As it is his first and only offense, don't you think my advice is best?

A FRIEND: While I don't like to go back on a friend who gets into trouble, even through his own fault, I would not think a boy who has to serve a jail sentence would be a very desirable friend for a young girl, especially if he is guilty of doing something that merits a prison sentence.

* * *

DISGUSTED thinks the boys are "fresh" and she wants a decent boy friend. Be friendly with the "fresh" boys. Disgusted. Don't take them too seriously, but don't let them get too fresh. Yes, there are fine young men in the world, so keep your ideals and look for the one you can respect and admire. You'll meet him some day. Sometimes boys act fresh because they think girls expect it of them.

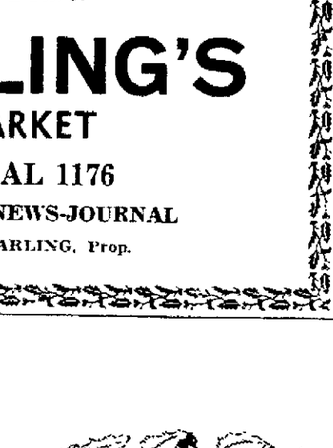
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FACULTY CARD READING

SOME otherwise fair players find fault with their partner's leads, declaring they cannot be read. In many such cases, the reason they are not read is a lack of card reading ability. So the one who finds fault during the post mortem may be himself the one who is to blame for the trouble that develops.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable).

After South's opening bid of 1-No Trump, North jumped to 3-No Trumps and West's opening lead was the spade 8. On this dummy played the 4, East the Q and South the A.

With three tricks in diamonds, and three in clubs, as well as two sure spade tricks, South attempted to set up a heart trick. East won the first lead of that suit and returned a spade to West's K. A third round of the suit was won with dummy's J, and the contract made with ease.

East criticized West for not leading the spade 10, contending that the lead of the 8 was difficult for him to read. West's retort was that if the 8 was a fourth best lead, South held only one higher than it and East should not have played the Q. If the 8 had been the top of a worthless short suit, South would then have held the A-K-10-9, in which case he would undoubtedly have bid that suit rather than no triump on the first round of bidding.

If East allows the spade 8 to ride, the contract is set, as the opponents get three spades and two hearts instead of the two spades to which they were limited by the play of the Q.

Monday's Problem.

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable).

What is the correct defense against South's contract of 3-No Trumps?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, December 25.

THE PLANETARY influences affecting this day are negligible, giving free scope for the indulgence in the festive and spiritual celebration of the day of "peace on earth" and to "men of good will." It is a time for friendliness, kindness, charity and the social functions conventional to the season. It might be well to sign any necessary papers with care and to refrain from petty irritabilities or indulgences.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a year in which very much in the way of progress and success is left to their own individual attack, energy and good will. Contracts and new business engage the attention and should receive shrewd and vigilant manipulation, with vexations and irritabilities held under firm control. Be wise in litigation and safeguard property.

A child born on this day may be very enterprising and lively, with the tendency to work under high pressure. But certain tempestuous and reckless traits call for early discipline.

For Sunday, December 26.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE accents the merrymaking and indulgences of the holiday season with prospects of extravagance and much pleasure, not only in friendly contacts but in romantic and sentimental adventures. It is a propitious time for celebration and generous impulses, but not to a regrettable extent. There should be some practical restraints.

Those whose birthday it is may have a very pleasant year, with much in the way of romantic adventure, romance and courtship. In this there may be an inclination to extravagance.

A child born on this day may be capable, ambitious, progressive and adventurous, particularly in all relating to its personal or sentimental life. It should have a happy and popular life, with much outlay in the pursuit of pleasure.

For Monday, December 27.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for an extremely lively, exciting and progressive day, with much upheaval and commotion, judging by the lunar aspects. There may be sudden change, removal and its fortunes, business, employment and the launching of new projects.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year of much significance in business and private lives. There may be radical change of interests, environs and contacts, with strangers figuring importantly. Travel seems inevitable.

A child born on this day may be clever, enterprising, practical and constructive, although adventurous and fond of frequent change. It may travel much and have many strange experiences, with much happiness in its private life.

Winter flowering begonias are most popular of flowering plants for home culture at this season of the year. They are easy to care for, require plenty of sunlight, a warm, humid atmosphere and daily waterings.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"It's for you, Madge," he said "person to person call from New Hampshire."

My hands flew to my throat which was suddenly constricted with error.

"The—the—children," I faltered, and felt Dicky's hands quickly on my shoulders in a salutary little shake whose reassurance I sorely needed.

"You anointed idiot!" Dicky exclaimed, "do you suppose if anything were wrong with the children, Katherine would wait for a person to person call? She'd get anybody on the phone as fast as possible."

I acknowledged the correctness of his premise, but I was too bewildered to think clearly.

"Then who?" I quavered.

"That's what you'll have to find out," my husband said. "Come along. The sooner you talk, the sooner you'll know who's calling you."

"This is Mrs. Graham," I said. "Who wants me?"

It's Philip Veritzen.

"Just a second," the operator said, but it was several seconds before Philip Veritzen's voice, faint, tremulous, but unmistakable, came to my ears.

"Mrs. Graham?" he queried, but before I answered, I covered the mouth of the receiver, beckoned Dicky to me and whispered:

"It's Phil Veritzen! Don't let them speak, no matter what I say. Tell them now, before I talk again."

I heard him explaining in quick whispers, as I turned back to the telephone with Mr. Veritzen at the other end querulously repeating my name over and over.

"Yes, this is Mrs. Graham," I queried. "Oh! Mr. Veritzen? I suppose you want news of your children. I am so sorry that I have not yet heard from them."

I felt rather than saw Noel's sudden protesting movement toward me, and Dicky's cautionary counter-movement.

Plane Forced Down.

"I think you should set the police upon their trail," he said, and there was venom instead of anxiety in his voice. "I have telephoned every dinner and dance place in your vicinity, as well as the state troopers, but can find no trace of them. Then I chartered a plane to fly down there, so I could solve for myself this bizarre mystery of their disappearance, and I have had a most terrifying experience."

"Oh! I am sorry," I said contritely—and sincerely. "What happened?"

"The plane was forced down—an emergency landing. Fortunately, no one was hurt, but after we were out it burst into flames. It really was most unnerving."

"I am glad you were not injured," I said. "What are your plans now?"

"I have none except to get back to the hotel as soon as possible—I'm in a tiny hamlet which fortunately has a telephone, but no accommodations for stranded people. I'm trying to get hold of an automobile now. But I want to know if you've had any message from my son."

"There's something the matter with the receiver," I said quickly. "I can't get clearly what you are saying. Will you please wait until I get the upstairs phone?"

"I am so sorry to have delayed you," I said, "but the receiver of that lower telephone was hopeless. I must have it repaired the first thing in the morning. Can you hear me distinctly on this phone?"

"Most distinctly," he answered. "In fact, I see, or rather hear, no difference. It seems to me like the same telephone. Can you hear me?"

"Oh, yes, very well, indeed. Now if you don't mind telling me again what you said just before I left for the other telephone. I gathered that you were going back to the hotel. Does that mean you're not coming down here?"

Reaction Is Surprise.

"It distinctly does mean that," he said, and his voice held more than a tinge of acerbity. "But that is not important. I asked you if you had heard from Noel yet, or has he started back by airplane?"

I seized my "Sapphira complex" with both hands.

"No, to both questions," I said.

I heard a deep, sibilant breath, and then Philip Veritzen said surprisingly, but emphatically, "Thank God."

"I probably shall get over this experience," he said, "but just now I don't wish ever to see another airplane. And I certainly don't wish Noel traveling by one. When he calls up, tell him to get back with the car as soon as possible after it is finished. I will call up again from the hotel tomorrow after I get back. Good night."

"What did he say?" she demanded, and when I told her, she stood motionless for the fraction of a second, and then with the swiftness of a homing pigeon went into her young husband's arms.

"Oh! Noel darling, we have our extra day safe after all," she caroled.

Nuptial music will include the organ and vocal selections, "Because" and "I Love You Truly." A reception will be held at the Mills' home following the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Mills will make their home in Lexington with the bridegroom's parents.

COLONIAL STYE POPULAR

Early American and colonial pieces of furniture are gaining in popularity, it is reported from the Chicago Furniture Mart. Americans continue to "go American," in their taste, desiring the simple furniture of their ancestors.

A nice way of introducing two or three color combinations into an evening dress is to take scarfs of the dress fabric and wind and knot them closely over the bust, shoulders and diaphragm to form the bodice. It is being done in a number of new dresses.

Big Job Faces Santa

He May Find It Difficult to Satisfy Requests of Sports Figures.

By OSCAR RUHL
(News-Journal Sports Editor.)

INTERCEPTED LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS:

DEAR SANTA: Facing one of the toughest schedules in Mansfield high school football history next fall, I will have my socks hung at the fireplace as usual tonight. I would like to have them filled with a couple of hard running halfbacks, a good blocking back and three or four linemen as hard to budge as the Washington monument. J. RUSSELL MURPHY.

* * *

DEAR MR. CLAUS: When you make your rounds tonight we will probably be in bed dreaming of our next year's hooks and slices, but please don't forget our request for boxes of assorted "birdies," "pars" and "eagles." THE GOLFERS.

* * *

DEAR KRIS: All I ask for the citizens of Mansfield this Christmas is a baseball park. You can leave it on North Main street on the Empire Steel company property. If you will comply with this request, I will sub for you in April and leave a baseball team at the park. BILLY EVANS.

* * *

DEAR S. CLAUS: We notice that considerable ado is being made over 300 games rolled in league competition. Now all we ask is one of these perfect games for each bowler in Mansfield. THE BOWLERS.

* * *

DEAR MR. KRINGLE: Perhaps you are unaware of the fact, but a gigantic track carnival is staged in the city each spring, and I am fortunate enough to be the director of the event. We had a few less than 1,000 contestants last spring. Can you leave a few extra entries to put us over that mark next year? HARRY E. MEHOCK.

* * *

DEAR SANTA: Of course, I'm really not kicking. You've been very kind to me in the past. But, please, be a little less kind to Mansfield high in your distribution of football talent for next fall: PAUL BROWN.

* * *

DEAR WHISKERS: There is one thing that we've wanted for a long time—a series of first-class boxing shows. You might leave us one show with Honeyboy Jones against, maybe, Alabama Kid, on top. BOXING FANS.

* * *

DEAR MR. CLAUS: Unless you can send me a contract for an assignment in a league of higher classification, I would appreciate it if you would send me back to Mansfield. DEWEY STOVER.

* * *

DEAR SANTA: We don't begrudge anybody a championship, but what are the chances of a more even distribution of victories for next year. Remember, you spilled most of them at Mansfield last Christmas. OHIO STATE LEAGUE MANAGERS.

* * *

DEAR KRIS: Please send us another assortment of Stovers, Cheneys, Spartichinos, Heaths, Schneidmullers, Lees, Gilberts, Veseks, Haulbrooks, Patras' and Barrets, another affiliation with the Boston Red Sox and a new ball park. That's all we ask. BASEBALL FANS.

* * *

DEAR SANTA CLAUS: Being new around this section, and not wanting to ask for too much, I will be satisfied with merely a pennant for next season. I will not need any boos. Part of the supply you left Steve last Christmas remains. OSCAR VITT.

* * *

DEAR SANTA: All we ask for is more tennis courts. Also less trouble from Lowell Bourns. TENNIS PLAYERS.

* * *

DEAR KRIS: My request is the same as usual. Just drop a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year down the chimney of every Mansfield home. OSCAR RUHL.

BOB GLASS LEADS OHIO

Massillon Star Scores Twice as All-Stars Win In Florida, 19 to 0.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—Bobby Glass, fullback from the Massillon championship prep team of Ohio, led an all-Ohio eleven to a 19-0 victory over the Florida West Coast all-stars in a "Kumquat Bowl" game here last night.

The Ohioans scored in all but the final quarter. Glass was a sparkplug of the offense and twice carried the ball to pay dirt.

Rauch Scores.

Fred Rauch, Cincinnati halfback, made a 10-yard plunge in the second period for the other touchdown. The Florida boys opened a rally in the last quarter but it ended on the Ohio 18.

Glass started with a march from Florida's 46 in the first period. He ran 24 yards and then passed to Carl Snavely, his Massillon team-mate, for another gain of eight. Snavely was injured on the play and taken from the game.

Rauch, halfback, carried the ball to a first down on the Florida nine. In three plays he placed it on the two-yard stripe, from where Glass rushed it over. A kick for point was wide.

Midway in the second period, Glass returned a punt from his own 45 to the Florida 30. A pass, Barille to Glass, netted ten more yards. Glass picked up eight in two plays and came out of the game, injured. Rauch took the ball over, hitting the center of the line. He kicked the extra point from placement and Ohio led, 13-0.

Sprints 28 Yards.

The last Ohio scoring charge started in the middle of the third, when Rauch found a big hole through tackle on the 28 and sprinted for the last touchdown.

Tygers' Game With Erie Tops Holiday Sked.

There will be very little action on the basketball courts in this section of the state until after the holiday season.

A few games are on schedule but the majority of the quintets will mark time until Jan. 7 when they will return to action in league contests.

Mansfield high's Tygers will be one of the few teams to make appearances next week. The Tygers, whose record includes two victories and a pair of defeats, meet the barnstorming Erie, Pa. East quintet on the Mansfield boards Wednesday night.

A few of the N. C. O. County and Twin-Valley league teams will play non-league tilts next week.

Ontario Staves Off Late Rally to Stop Morrow Countians, 29-25.

Ontario High tallied a non-league basketball victory last night when it turned back a stubborn Iberia outfit, 29 to 25, on te Ontario high court before a fair-sized crowd.

Coach Orville Kibler's athletes went into the final stanza leading, 24 to 7. The invaders broke loose to collect 18 points before they could halt them.

Taking a 8 to 6 lead in the opening period, the Ontario club increased it to a 16 to 7 count at the half. The winners registered eight points in the third quarter while holding Iberia scoreless.

Matt Hager topped the individual scoring with 10 points, while Burggins was high for the losers with nine.

Youthful Swimmers Churn Up Standards

KATHERINE (KITTY) RAWLS

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK—(AP)—Adolph Kiefer, Ralph Flanagan and Katherine Rawls plus a bumper crop of records boomed swimming in the United States during 1937.

Kiefer won A. A. U. titles both indoors and out. He took the 100-meter backstroke and swam for the Lake Shore A. C.'s victorious 880-yard relay team outdoors. In the indoor A. A. U. meet at New Haven. Kiefer captured the 150-yard backstroke title and swam on the 300-yard medley relay team for the Lake Shore A. C., which won the event.

Flanagan, although he won no titles indoors, took outdoor championships at 440 yards, 880 yards and one mile.

Katie Rules Mermaids.

Miss Rawls was supreme in both divisions among women swimmers. Outdoors she captured A. A. U. championships at 440 yards, 880 yards, one mile and in the 300-meter individual medley swim for the Miami (Fla.) Beach club.

The diminutive Marjorie Gestring of Los Angeles won the 10-foot springboard dive title both outdoors and indoors, while Al Patnick of Ohio with triumphs indoors on the 10-foot board and outdoors on the 3-foot and 10-foot board ruled supreme in this division.

There was much wholesale record-setting. Al Vande Weghe smashed four A. A. U. indoor backstroke records in March, swimming 100 meters in 1:07.8, 150 yards in 1:36.2, 200 meters in 2:28 and 220 yards in 2:28.9.

Flanagan splurged with four record smashing performances, at the outdoor A. A. U. championship mile event. His time for the mile was 20:36.6, which lowered the accepted world record set by Jack Medica by 15.2 seconds. Holiday Not To Effect Schedule; Special Matches On Tap.

The holiday will not effect the bowling schedule at the Meder Recreation alleys over the week-end, M. S. Meder, owner and operator of the alleys, announced today. The alleys will be open as usual.

A number of special matches are on schedule for Sunday, Meder said, but the city's Northern Ohio Traveling league representatives will bowl out of the city. DON GLOVES AT ARMORY

Feuding Grapplers to Settle Differences With Fists Monday Night.

Bob Blake, wild Columbus lightheavyweight, and Sterling Davis, untamed Texan, will settle their mat difficulties with their fists Monday night.

Matchmaker Tim Nolan today announced that he has signed Blake and Davis to fight in a 10-round contest featuring Monday night's athletic show scheduled for the Armory arena.

Wrestle With Fists.

The matching of Blake and Davis to fight with the padded mitts is the outgrowth of a heated slugging match which took place here last Monday.

Blake

"These two boys evidently don't want to wrestle, they want to fight, so we're just throwing them in there to slug it out if that's the way they want it," Promotor Nolan stated in announcing that he had signed them.

The show will be a combined boxing and wrestling program and two popular stars of the lightheavyweight mat division have been signed to feature the wrestling part of the program.

In this tilt, Frankie Hart, little Hollander who made a great hit here, is to meet Walter Stratton, powerful northern Ohio farmer boy, in a two out of three falls match with an hour and a half time limit.

Mexican on Card.

The other event on the program will send Jose Rodriquez, fiery Mexican, against Joe Magyar, brawny Hungarian lightheavy, in a 20-minute contest.

Action Promised City League Fans

Sports Meet Pure Oils, Westies Face Canzols In City Class A League Games Monday Night; Elks Draw Bye Next Week.

A PAIR of basketball games that are expected to develop into interesting affairs are on tap for followers of the City Class A league Monday night at the Senior high gym.

The evening's feature attraction will toss the pace-setting Yuncker Sports against the strong Mack's Pure Oil combine at 8:30, while in the opening game the Westinghouse Electric quintet tackles the Ira D. Ling Canzols. The Elks club draws a bye.

The Pure Oils, who last week made their debut against the Westies, will be in an excellent spot to throw a wrench into the league standings. If the Oils can drop the Yuncker outfit and Westinghouse beats the Canzols, the circuit lead would be shared by the Sportsmen and Electrics.

Jimmy Breres' undefeated club, pre-season favorite to annex the championship relinquished by Dominion Electrics, has been unable to click so far and the Oilmen's chances of victory are good. Both the Yuncker team's victories have been won on two-point margins.

In an effort to bolster the club, Breres has secured Bob Charles, veteran City league star, Bob Fisher and Glen Irey, former Shelby high aces. Fisher and Irey played with the National Electrics last season.

Vern Jones' Westinghouse five will be offered an opportunity to hop into sole possession of the runner-up position by turning back the Canzols. The Electrics and Elks club are tied for second place with a victory and loss apiece.
